ALUMNI RALLY

There will be a meeting of all alumni who are interested in the Wesleyan game in Cook Hall at 8 p. m., Friday. Refreshments will be served. Help beat Wesleyan!

VARSIITY TEAM TO FACE WESLEYAN ON SATURDAY

Cardinal Passing Attack will be Threat to Undefeated
Blue and Gold

On Saturday, Trinity and Wesleyan will resume their ancient football rivalry, which dates back to 1885, when the first game between these institutions was played. This year's meeting, to take place on Trinity's field, will be the 37th of the series, 13 of which have been won by Trinity, while Wesleyan has gained 23. This contest promises to be a very close struggle, as both teams are evenly matched and equally eager for victory.

Trinity's Varsity, again under the able tutelage of Dan Jessee, has piled up an imposing list of victories to date. Hartwick College was the first victim of the Blue and Gold in a wet 39 to 0 conflict. R. P. I. likewise succumbed to the powerful Hilltoppers to the tune of 27 to 0. Also, in order, fell Worcester Tech, 34 to 0, Coast Guard, 14 to 6, Connecticut State, 25 to 0. Although greatly handicapped through lack of reserves and also through injuries, the team has built up a fine spirit and confidence and a will not to be defeated.

Wesleyan has practically the same team as they had last year, but also feels a lack of reserve material. Their coach, Jack Blott, is a graduate of the University of Michigan. He has introduced a new system of football to the Cardinals which is based on the open style play used to such advantage at his alma mater. In their first game they were not accustomed to their new system and were beaten by Union, 7 to 0. Their second appearance was made against Connecticut State, and although somewhat slow in getting started, they came through to win 14 to 0. Against Bowdoin their passing attack functioned perfectly to bring them a hard-fought 13 to 0 victory. Against Haverford they again employed passes to romp to a 19 to 6 in, while at the same time they ironed out some minor defense difficulties which were noticeable in the Bowdoin contest. Last Saturday a powerful Amherst team defeated Wesleyan 37 to 7.

Following is a list of all the games which have been played between Trinity and Wesleyan:

James Henderson, Jr., was re-elected president of his class at the annual Sophomore Smoker which was held Monday evening, October 22. Milton L. Doty was elected chairman of the Sophomore Hop Committee, and tentative plans were discussed for this dance. The meeting was held in the cafeteria, and refreshments were served.

POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Four Trinity Alumni Give Talks;
Jaffee Elected President of Organization

Professor and Mrs. Humphrey entertained the newly reorganized Political Science Club last Thursday evening, October 25. An hour and a half meeting, consisting largely of talks by four guest speakers, all former Trinity men, was followed by refreshments and the election of officers for the present college year. Seventeen students attended the meeting.

Professor Humphrey extended a few words of welcome to the guests and members of the club, after which Jesse Jaffe, acting as chairman, opened the meeting with a reading of the new constitution by Vernon Brown. The constitution was adopted by a unanimous vote. Jaffe then appointed a nominating committee and called on the first speaker of the evening, Mr. George Cohen, Assistant United States District Attorney, who was introduced by Professor Humphrey.

In his talk Mr. Cohen emphasized the value of a close study of the Constitution and the point that in a study of political science it must be kept in mind that no system of government is perfect and adaptable to all peoples because of differences in racial temperaments.

The second speaker of the evening, Mr. Normand Deschamp, of the State Insurance Department, gave a de-

Among Individual Scorers

After the dust had settled on Eastern gridirons Saturday evening, Trinity was still among the undefeated and untied football teams in the East, in company with ten other elevens. The Blue and Gold ranks fifth in the total number of points scored, having rolled up 139 against 6 for her opponents.

Mickey Kobrosky, sophomore half-back, ranks second in the race for scoring honors in the East, with a total of 60 points. In first place is Shepherd of Western Maryland with 71 points.

Eigenbauer is also well up in the list with 25 points, and Kellam is still the leading scorer among the tackles, having crossed his opponents' goal lines for four touchdowns.

Saturday saw Trinity's football team ring up its fifth victory of the season in as many starts by drubbing Connecticut State by the score 25-0. recent years witnessed the contest, which was slowed up by frequent penalties. Throughout the afternoon the Blue and Gold outplayed the Nutmeggers, and only twice did the visitors threaten Trinity's well-guarded goal line, both times in the first half.

Trinity clinched the game early in the first period with two determined marches that ended in touchdowns. From then on the game deteriorated into a listless struggle in which both teams were penalized almost more yards than they gained from scrimmage. In the second quarter Trinity seemed helpless until they were in danger of being scored on, but then the line held very well. State threatened twice in this period and was prevented from scoring only by penalties and a forward pass grounded in the end zone. Kellam intercepted a pass near the end of the half and ran 45 yards for a touchdown to provide the only bright spot in the second period for the Trinity rooters.

The last half was little better than the first. Numerous penalties would offset the advantages gained by either team. Long runs by Kobrosky of Trinity and Owens of State, and a brilliant Trinity passing attack enlivened an otherwise slow game. For a while it seemed that the contest might develop into an open sparring match or perhaps a free-for-all, but this was luckily averted.

Maher, Hanaghan, and Alexander were outstanding in the Trinity defense. Samper's blocking and line plunges, and Kobrosky's passes and twisting runs were high-spots in the offense. The defensive work of Horn and Cronin, and the running of the latter and Poland featured the play of State.

NO FIRES—WE HOPE

On Friday night it is certain that there will be a number of students who will be anxious to show their spirit and faith in the football team by indulging in a bit of pyromania. Most of us remember the night before last year's Wesleyan game, when the fire-hungry element was disappointed after a bitter controversy between administration and undergraduate representatives. There is no need for the repetition of such an incident.

The danger of having a bonfire in the vicinity is obvious. Not only would the problem of controlling the blaze and keeping the sparks from catching anywhere be present, but the conflagration would also serve as an excuse for the youthful rabble who haunt our Saturday afternoon athletic contests to overrun again the college grounds and perhaps prolong the celebration with unpleasant depredations. It is extremely doubtful, moreover, that a permit to have the bonfire would be issued by the Fire Department. Cities are not built for fires, and no one is anxious to have any more of them than is necessary within the limits.

There will be a student rally in Alumni Hall and one for the alumni in Cook, at which the two groups will join in singing the praises of one of Trinity's outstanding football teams. We suggest that our bonfire enthusiasts resort to these occasions and the next day's game itself as opportunities for letting off their praiseworthy excess spirit. We can beat Wesleyan without singeing Hartford's beard.

MID-DAY CHAPEL

The mid-day chapel service was an obvious success. For a period of two weeks last spring it was far more popular than the early morning service. The same popularity was manifested this fall, and the reasons for it are clear. First of all, there is the natural reluctance among students to getting up for an eight o'clock service, when they may have no classes for an hour or more. This is especially to be considered from the point of view of the off-campus man, who must allow for traveling time each morning. Second, the early service has always seemed to defeat its purpose by presuming a devotional attitude on the part of students who are half asleep. Few things are less inspiring than the spectacle of fifty bleary-eyed men laboring through their prayers and hymns.

The mid day service does not interfere with sleep, and it does not frustrate its spiritual motive. Its attendance during the trial periods was large, its effect upon the students entirely satisfactory. Certainly it should be continued, if not along with an early service, then as a desirable substitute.

THE PRACTICAL WORLD

There has been comment in the past about the apathetic attitude of Trinity students toward the events of the outside world. According to certain critics, the American college has become a retreat in which the student spends four years of a sequestered life, dealing with the metaphysical and speculating on abstracts that are unrelated to the actual scheme of things in the "real" world outside the college halls. History is in the making, we are told by those who are deeply concerned, and is being made very fast in these tumultuous years before our unsuspecting eyes. Although this may have been true of the twenties and perhaps even to a large extent of the past few years, we

Inquiring Reporter

Question—Do you favor having the Honor System at Trinity?

E. L. Thompson, '37.

The honesty and integrity of a student is firmly established by the time he enters college. An honor system would not help anyone whose honor is firmly entrenched, but, on the other hand, it would encourage the dishonesty of those students whose ideals were not quite stable.

D. L. Farnell, '35.

I am convinced that the honor system cannot be successful at Trinity or any other college. To be sure, it is practiced in several colleges throughout the country, but both the professors and the students in these institutions admit that it is not entirely satisfactory. My main objection to the honor system is that it works in opposition to human nature. There have been several cases in the past when cribbing meant the gaining or losing of a degree. There are very few people whose honor would keep them from dishonesty under such circumstances. Furthermore, even with the present system in use at Trinity College, there have been several people found guilty of dishonesty. Evidently there are dishonest people in the world. Why increase the probability of such actions in the future by introducing the Honor System?

R. L. Hollins, '35.

Theoretically the Honor System would prove successful in an ideal group, but unfortunately such a group neither exists in Trinity nor in any other college. Under such a system temptation is blatantly thrust in one's face, and a conflict arises in the students' mind whether or not to succumb, and it is only by the strictest supervision that this temptation can be eliminated.

R. H. Gillespie, '36.

The honor system has been tried and retained at many of the largest colleges in the country. Here at Trinity many of the professors give their classes a chance to practice this system by leaving the room or reading while a quiz is in progress. I think the Honor System is worth a try at Trinity.

H. R. Scull, '36.

It is my belief that, although the Honor System may be said to work satisfactorily in many of our foremost institutions today, the basic principle is incongruous with the attitude which should be adopted towards honor in a gentleman. The Honor System seems to presume that men who cheat can be taught the right by pledges of honesty on their own part and those of others. It would be more desirable to inculcate in students that honor is inherent and cannot be created by outside pressure. They who are lacking in a sense of honor can profit more wisely by the example of honor without compulsion.

A. W. Mountford, '37.

The Honor System rests entirely on the individual. A student who is in the habit of cheating during exams will

Plea for Participation in Student War Protest

To the Editor of the Tripod:

On November 11, Armistice Day, we shall celebrate the end of the World War. Sixteen years ago, nations were tired of fighting, and ashamed of themselves because their greatest folly had directly and indirectly cost ten million lives. The strongest hope of those who lived through that war was for lasting peace. Many sincere vows were made: there should never be another such mistake.

What is the feeling today about war?

There are pacifists, more than ever, who cry passionately for peace. There are militarists who insist upon more guns, more battleships, more soldiers. There are misguided fools who joke about war. And there are shrewd profiteers who encourage it. Yet all these form a minority. The majority consists of a mass of people who are confused as to what war is, and who are weakly resigned to another one, which is predicted, not carelessly, by students of international relations.

Most college men are a part of this majority. It is deplorable that they allow themselves to be, when they are ripening to be picked off by the next war's guns. Suppose they face the facts. What can they do? They can show positive, articulate objection to war and its causes by joining with other students in militant demonstration against it. On April 13 of this year twenty-five thousand students throughout the country struck, cutting their classes for one hour, and pledged to support their government in no war that it might undertake. The same pledge has been made by young men in other countries.

Some apathetic student may ask, "What material aid to peace is a mass meeting, a marching demonstration, or a pledge? The answer is that every concerted expression against war by those who would have to be soldiers, is a warning to the interests that bring about war. And although each expression may be small, even negligible in itself, its force is felt when added to many others. We can let the war lords know that we mean business; that if they force another generation of young men to be killers, they may do so at their own risk. A threat like that goes a long way toward delaying war. And as the threat grows, the possibility of any future war collapses.

"Armistice Day week-end this year will see a demonstration by college students against war, organized on a nation-wide basis. A united front committee of many student groups has arranged for mass meetings on all campuses for Friday, November 9." (From the New York Post.)

I appeal to all Trinity students who sincerely want peace, to join in a mass are beginning to feel that interest in affairs of the practical world is being awakened. A glimmer of hope, at least, is afforded by the redoubled efforts of our Athenaeum Society to provide a large program of local and intercollegiate debates on topics of international importance, and by the reorganization of the Political Science Club. The Athenaeum now includes about thirty-five members with a dozen new men responding to its recent call for tryouts. Twenty-two students are listed on the roll of the Political Science Club.

Tomorrow night a political forum, sponsored by the Athenaeum Society, is to be held in Alumni Hall. Candidates of four major parties will speak on the aims of their respective groups in the coming state elections. This is an opportunity, brought to our own campus, for every Trinity student to become acquainted with many issues at stake in our political life. A large attendance is anticipated. We hope, however, that not only a large number of the students but every student will attend. Surely, the attendance at a forum of this kind will be as good an indication of our interest in outside affairs as could be desired.

Perry Takes Fourth for Trinity; Different Course Run

Last Saturday a strong Connecticut State Cross-Country Team defeated the Trinity Team 18 to 37. As crushing as the defeat was, in the eyes of Trinity men there was still some improvement from last year's 15 to 40 drubbing at the hands of the same team.

Sutley, Linley, and Chapman led the race in that order for Connecticut State, with Abbey in fifth place and Averill in seventh to complete their low score of 18. Perry at fourth place for Trinity was followed by Bob Lau at sixth, and then by Bauer, Montford, and Castagno, bringing up the rear in places eight, nine, and ten, respectively.

Twenty-Five Years Ago in the Tripod

October 29, 1909.

The football team left today for Hamilton, N. Y., to play a strong Colgate team. A very hard-fought game is expected tomorrow, and it is impossible to say with any certainty who will win it. The two teams have not played any games by which the result might be foretold by comparative scores. Colgate defeated St. Lawrence University 58 to 0, beat Hamilton 41 to 0, and was beaten by Yale 36 to 0. Trinity will undoubtedly be stronger, with Cook back at quarter, but on the other hand, it must be admitted that the team has not been playing the game of which they are capable.

ATHENAEUM COMPLETES POLITICAL FORUM PLANS

Speakers To Be Introduced by President Ogilby in Alumni Hall

At a meeting of the Athenaeum Society held on October 30, the program committee announced the completion of plans for the Political Forum to be held in Alumni Hall on Wednesday, October 31, from 7.45 to 10.15. The committee, whose members are Frederick Senf, chairman, John Sheldon McCook, Milton M. Rulnick, William Roos, and Barclay Shaw, declared that a large audience is expected, so that the seating facilities of the auditorium may prove inadequate. The speakers as announced by Senf are as follows: Hon. Wilbur L. Cross, Democratic candidate for Governor; Col. Anson T. McCook, Republican candidate for Congress; Mr. Isadore Wofsy, Communist candidate for Governor; Mr. Devere Allen, Socialist candidate for United States Senator; and Mr. Alvin M. Gully, Socialist-Labor candidate for Governor.

The speakers, who are to be introduced by President R. B. Ogilby, will discuss the economic issues of the campaign, explaining the attitude of their respective parties toward the CONN. STATE SIDELIGHTS.

When the whistle signified the close of the last period of the State game, Trinity was still looming large in the select circle of undefeated and untied elevens in the nation. There are only fourteen teams now left on the list, and Trinity is ranked among the top seven who have won five straight.

Mimi Marquet was the outstanding player on the field. The heady signal-barker passed, ran and tackled, with equal proficiency, to give one of the most brilliant individual performances of the season.

Jim Hanaghan, giant tackle, gets tremendous drive out of those long legs of his. Time after time Big James was the first Trinity man down under those space-devouring punts off the toe of Luke Kellam.

Mickey Kobrosky kept within hailing distance of that Eastern individual scoring diadem by adding another touchdown to his rapidly growing collection.

Trinity, continuing to score on the average of four touchdowns to the game, has already amassed more points than the 1932 and 1933 elevens taken together!

Sis Sampers, hard-hitting fullback, battered the State line to shreds with his consistent plunging. Sis measures only five feet and six inches in his stocking feet, but he packs plenty of latent dynamite in that compact 167-pound frame of his. And, if Trinity ever had a ball-carrier who was better at backing up the line, we would have liked to have seen him in action. They just don't come much better than the burly Yonkers product.

Captain Jack Maher was also a bulwark on the defensive. He was responsible, personally, for nearly three-quarters of the tackles in the first half alone.

From where we sat, it seemed that several of the Connecticut linemen would have done a much better job out there had they played football, instead of making a pretty sorry attempt at what are commonly termed roughhouse tactics. Many fans on both sides would back us up willingly, judging from the audible responses these actions brought.

The highly-gearred aerial attack flashed by Trinity in the last quarter was a work of perfection. Mimi Marquet was tossing them with rare precision, with Ike Eigenbauer doing the major share of the receiving in very capable fashion.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The Tripod expresses its appreciation to Mr. Stimpson Hubbard of the Class of 1926 for the photograph of the four Clement Brothers which appeared in our last issue. important problems confronting the people of Connecticut in this time of stress and anxiety. The speakers are all well qualified to represent their parties. Governor Cross was first elected to office in 1930 against a powerful Republican opposition, and in 1932 he duplicated this feat in spite of the efforts of some of the members of his own party. Col. McCook, who graduated from Trinity College in the class of 1902, is a well-known Hartford attorney with a long record of participation in politics; this is his first campaign for public office. The other speakers are able politicians with long records, Mr. Allen as a writer with a leftist tendency, and Mr. Wofsy as a labor organizer in the southern part of the state.

TRINITY FAVORED OVER WESLEYAN.

Undefeated and untied in five straight games, Trinity approaches the annual climax game with Wesleyan in the unenviable position of an odds-on favorite. Last year the Blue and Gold eleven was the underdog. But they crashed through to win a well-deserved upset triumph over the "Little Three" champions. Since that notable battle, the national football spotlight has been turned on this power-laden Trinity team of ours which has registered eight consecutive victories over the last two campaigns, and the stage is set for the Cardinals to spread gloom over a wide area, should they upset the dope.

But this 1934 Jessee-coached squad has not once allowed itself to "let-down." They will be in there every minute of the sixty, as they have been in all their previous encounters, with an abundance of real skill and plenty of fight all the way, and a total lack of that dangerous bugaboo of every winning club, over-confidence. It is for this reason, meanwhile bearing well in mind the fact that Trinity-Wesleyan games have always been close regardless of pre-game records, that we pick the clever Blue and Gold-clad warriors to keep their slate clean by both outsmarting and outplaying the Cardinal and Black, despite the latter's finely-attuned and much dreaded pass attack.

HERE AND THERE.

Dan Parker, who writes a daily sports column in the New York Daily Mirror, had this to say of the Trinity football team last Monday: "Trinity College up in Hartford, which gave the world such distinguished sports writers as Walter Trumbull and Ken Smith, has a great football team this year after many lean seasons, being unbeaten and untied. Little Trinity didn't go out recruiting, either, and its eligibility rules are as strict as you will find in any college, for Dr. Remsen Brinkerhoff Ogilby, president of Trinity, has long been one of the leaders in the de-emphasis movement" . . . William Shakespeare, star Notre Dame halfback, failed to pass his required English course last semester . . . There were only seven paid admissions to the Brooklyn College Arnold College game at Brooklyn College last week. . . . Johnny Boyd, once a Trinity yearling football ace, is playing regularly at guard on Pop Warner's powerful Temple U. eleven.

SOCCER TEAM LOSES TO CONNECTICUT STATE, 3-0

Mason Scores Two Goals to Lead Fast Blue and White Team to Victory

In the soccer game held here last Saturday the Connecticut State team overpowered the Blue and Gold booters 3-0. Mason, center forward, starred for the Blue and White, accounting for two goals.

Soon after the kickoff both teams had a chance for a goal, but neither was able to score. F. Schirm, Trinity center halfback, was injured, and R. Motten took his place, Hall taking Motten's former position at goal.

In the second quarter neither team seemed to have the advantage until Smith, State center halfback, placed a nice kick in front of the Trinity goal, from where it was headed through for the first State goal, making the score at the end of the first half 1-0 for the visitors.

Early in the third quarter Mason scored for Connecticut State. Trinity kept the ball down in State territory

Athenaeum Congratulated for Arranging Forum

To the Editor of the Tripod:

The Athenaeum is to be congratulated on the fine program it has arranged for Wednesday night. It is encouraging to note the interest that students appear to be taking in politics here at Trinity, and there ought to be a full turnout tomorrow night. Many of the fraternities are suspending their regular meetings in order to attend; it would be a fine thing if all of them were to do this.

Certainly, the speakers are all of them men high in their respective parties in this state. Governor Cross we all know as a man of great learning and one of our more famous executives; Colonel McCook is known to us as one of our outstanding alumni; and Messrs. Allen, Wofsy, and Gully, though not as familiar to us, are equally representative of their parties. It should be a most interesting evening, and every Trinity undergraduate should consider it a part of his course to attend.

Cheering Section as Aid to Leaders at Football Games

To the Editor of the Tripod:

The cheering at the football games this fall has been a noticeable improvement over that of recent years, and the cheerleaders are to be complimented on their good work. It was made clear at Saturday's game, however, that there is a need for a cheering section. When there are so many outsiders at a game, the student body tends to scatter through the crowd, and it is difficult to get a concerted cheer from the stands when so many don't know what the cheers are.

Perhaps a section could be roped off and reserved for all students who attend the game without friends or families. To this part of the audience the cheerleaders could better direct their efforts, and it is certain that the results will be louder and more uniform.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.

Hearst tickets as a candidate for County judge in the November elections.

Communication—Editor of the Tripod: Trinity has one deficiency that no amount of excellence in other ways can quite atone for, viz: inability to sing the college songs. It is a fact that the students, assembled at a college meeting, cannot even sing “'Neath the Elms” with any effect. Something must be done about it.

The plan of stated times for college sings was tried with small success two years ago. A better plan must be tried.

Why not class singing competitions? Other colleges have them—Amherst, for example. Set one class against another . . . limit them to college songs as found in the song book. If we cannot have a prize, let it be made a point of class jealousy and pride . . . perhaps a count for the lemon-squeezer. A public competition some time in the spring would determine the class championship.

The importance of concerted singing as a breeder of college spirit cannot be exaggerated. Here is a chance for the Senate. Will it see fit to use its influence in this matter?

INQUIRING REPORTER.

do so regardless of whether there is an honor system or not. In schools and colleges where the Honor System is in force, it is up to the students to report any cheating on the part of their classmates. This is a very difficult thing to do, and nine times out of ten a case of cheating will not be reported. Although the Honor System is an admirable thing, if it can be worked out, I maintain that it should not be adopted at Trinity College.

F. T. JACKSON, '38.

I think that the Honor System at Trinity College would be just as successful as at any other college, for instance, Williams and Wesleyan. Of course there would be a few men who would not cooperate, but the number of these would be relatively small, and they could easily be spotted and, if necessary, reported. Naturally it would be difficult to report a man for dishonesty, but in order to keep the system going successfully, it would have to be done. This difficulty would be a major one, but I think that as time went on the undesirables would be weeded out, and the necessity for reporting would become less and less. At any rate, I am convinced that it is worth a tryout.

Prof. Humphrey Scores Pareto Sociology as Unscientific in Mark Twain Lecture

"Italian Demography," a corollary of the new "Scientific Sociology" of Vilfredo Pareto, was discussed by Edward Frank Humphrey, Northam Professor of History and Political Science at Trinity, for the fourth conference on "Contemporary Civilization," in his Mark Twain Memorial Lecture Course.

Mussolini and his celebrated Black Shirts raised their party war cry in Milan fifteen years ago. Since that time a Fascist Program has been defined which today stands for the Totalitarian State par-excellence, with the motto, "All for the State." An Italian engineer turned sociologist, Vilfredo Pareto, has become the "Major Prophet" of this new expression of authoritative stateism. Pareto's champions hail him as "the Copernicus" of a modern scientific sociology, while Pareto himself avows a sole purpose "to seek out experimental reality, by the application to the social science of the methods that have proved their worth in physics, chemistry, astronomy, biology and other similar (presumably physical) sciences." With this scientific (?) objective in view, Pareto proceeds to create two imaginary categories of men, the "Economic" and the "Sociological," and around these types he groups all human activities; one group of actions being termed "logico-experimental" and the other "non-logico-experimental." Nations in their turn are, he says, composed of two classes of citizens, the elite and the masses and it is the business of the former as rulers "to cull and brew" nostrums with which to dose the other people.

Herein lies the basis for another new science (?) Demography, the study of the people, the demos. To this new study Italy now pays especial heed. In a recent speech Mussolini cited the immediate demographic aims of Fascism as: first, a higher social justice for the whole Italian population; second, a more intimate knowledge of the productive process on the part of the workers together with participation in its necessary discipline; and third, scientific distribution as well as production of wealth.

To secure these demographic ends Mussolini has regimented the entire Italian nation into a single unified corporative state. Woman have been sent back to the kitchen and the cradle, with the State to fix the length of her skirts and the shape of her sleeves. The Italian male is given a rigid military education with an army training that extends from the eighth to the thirty-third year. At the age of eight an organization known as the Balilla starts preparing every boy to bear arms. At fourteen he joins the Avanguardisti where he is given "individual and collective military training sufficient to permit his incorporation into preliminary formations." From eighteen to twenty-one he forms the Fascist Militia, designed to "perfect his moral, gymnastic and military training in order to make him a soldier physically and morally prepared." From twenty-one to twenty-three he is in the Fascist Army and from twenty-three to thirty-three he must keep fully abreast of the "most recent developments in the art of war." For, as Mussolini says, the "function of the citizen and the soldier are inseparable."

Equipped with this strict disciplinary military education each Italian worker is graduated into his occupation or "corporation" as it is called, with Mussolini at the head, the Minister of Corporations. Strikes or other forms of industrial insubordination are as rigorously prohibited as in the army. And all of this organization is based upon the Pareto pseudo-scientific sociological theory of the demographic all-important State.

Have the Italians herein created a superior system, preferable to the Anglo-American representative type? Is it a truly scientific creation? Or is it merely a return to Machiavelli's artistic Renaissance creation of "The Prince" who put the welfare of the state above all other matters? Here are pragmatic questions which students of political science are called upon to answer. The theory is not without opponents even in Italy itself, while it is opposed abroad by a whole army of banished Italian subjects. It will be extremely difficult to convince those who have been brought up on free institutions, that Pareto or Mussolini have proven their new scientific totalitarian state theory.

Arrangements to Handle Crowd Saturday are Made

The Department of Physical Education, with the aid of the various football managers, is making every effort to handle the large crowd that is expected to attend the Wesleyan game in a manner that will encourage the spectators to attend other home football games in the future. The following arrangements have been made to aid in the efficient handling of the crowd:

- 1—No parking on the south side of Vernon Street between Dr. Ogilby's home and Broad Street.
 - 2—A free parking area will be provided on the soccer field for automobiles.
 - 3—The gate at the northeast corner of the athletic field will be used for ticket sale as well as the usual gate.
 - 4—Trinity students are requested to enter at the usual Trinity gate (west gate), and show their identification cards.
 - 5—Trinity and Wesleyan faculty are requested to use the main gate, showing Athletic Association cards and are required to pay government tax.
 - 6—Wesleyan students are to be admitted without charge and are to use the new single gate which has been erected near the Trinity student gate.
 - 7—General admission price is to be $1.50, and reserve seats $2. These prices include the tax. Reserve seats are on sale at McCoy's Music Store at 87 Asylum Street and at the Trinity gymnasium office.
 - 8—In addition to the individual reserve seats on each side of the field, there will be a section reserved for college students and faculty which will be located near the 50-yard line.
- The student body is requested to cooperate in an attempt to show the public that we are equipped to handle a large football crowd.

Let's find out why Turkish tobacco is so important to a good cigarette Native tobacco grower telling American tourists how Turkish tobacco is cured.

On the sunny slopes of Smyrna . . . in the fertile fields of Macedonia . . . along the shores of the Black Sea . . . grows a kind of tobacco that is different from any other tobacco in the world.

THESE Turkish tobaccos are the only tobaccos of foreign cultivation that are used to any great extent in making American cigarettes.

Turkish tobaccos are famous for their spicy aroma, and a blend of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco with our own home-grown tobaccos is better than any one kind used alone.

In Chesterfield we balance mild, ripe tobaccos grown in this country with just the right amounts of the right kinds of Turkish.

It is by blending and cross-blending these different tobaccos that we make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Turkish tobacco hung in the open air to be cured.

Connecticut won the toss and elected to kick off against the wind. The ball was fumbled by the receiver and rolled out of bounds on the Trinity five-yard line. On the following play Kellam kicked from this precarious spot to the State 35-yard stripe. After two ineffectual Connecticut line plays Maher intercepted a pass, and the ball went to Trinity on their opponents' 45-yard line. Six off-tackle plays with Kobrosky and Eigenbauer running the ball carried to within three yards of the goal line, and Kobrosky plunged over for the first score. Weber's place-kick for the extra point went wild, and the score stood 6-0. Trinity then kicked off and Alexander downed the receiver on the one-yard line. Now it was State's turn to kick from the "coffin corner", and Marquet received the ball on the 40, running it back 10 yards. After two line plays failed to gain, a pass from Kobrosky fell into the waiting arms of Roach, who stepped across the line for the second score. Again Weber missed the try for extra point, and Trinity led 12-0. For the remainder of this quarter, the ball see-sawed back and forth. Near the end State made a determined march with Kelly, Poland and Cronin carrying the ball to put it within easy scoring distance.

During the second period Connecticut State made a vain attempt to score. They carried the ball through Trinity's line making gain after gain. The Jessemen held when the ball entered their territory, however, and Kellam or Kobrosky would kick out of danger. The second quarter opened with Connecticut in possession of the ball on Trinity's five-yard marker. The forward wall of the Blue and Gold strengthened at this point and smeared the line plays. State tried a pass which fell beyond the end zone and the ball changed hands going to Trinity on its own 20. After Kellam had kicked to State's 45-yard stripe, the Nutmeggers opened another drive to place the ball on Trinity's three-yard line. A 15-yard penalty handicapped the visitors and they lost the ball on downs. The Roosters kicked out of danger, obtained the ball again and kicked once more. Poland punted to Marquet, who ran it 20 yards to his own 45-yard line. Kobrosky fumbled. State attempted a pass, but Kellam intercepted and ran unopposed 45 yards for a touchdown. Marquet kicked the extra point.

The second half was Trinity's. After a short punting duel the Blue and Gold, immediately following a spectacular 35-yard run by Kobrosky, fumbled and State recovered. Another exchange of kicks and Owens of Connecticut dashed 39 yards to put the ball on his 54-yard marker. Eigenbauer intercepted a pass, and made 25 yards. Marquet passed to Ike for a gain of 14 more. Marquet to Alexander netted six. Another to Lindell covered six more. A sweet run around right end with Marquet carrying the pigskin accounted for the fourth touchdown.

The game ended with the ball in Connecticut's hands after an attempt of Trinity's to score again with a pass had been frustrated by a penalty.

most of the time, but Mason again broke through for a goal. Trinity tried hard to score in the last quarter, but without success, and the game went to the Blue and White 3-0.

Next Friday the Trinity booters play Wesleyan at Middletown. Wesleyan conquered Connecticut State so the game is expected to be a tough one for Trinity.

scription of government's relation to insurance companies. Mr. Deschamps was president of the Political Science Club in 1930.

Mr. Robert Byrnes, Political Editor of the Hartford Courant, followed with an account of unusual sidelights on political personalities and incidents in conventions unknown to the general public that have determined the selection of party candidates for the past and coming elections.

A short greeting to the club was extended by Mr. James Breslin, Republican candidate for the State Senate.

As the last speaker of the evening, Mr. John Reitemeyer, City Editor of the Hartford Courant, explained the problem of drawing voters to the polls for the caucus, primary, and final election. He stated that the avowed independency from party alignments by voters is often really an apathy toward the political situation and encouraged every student to take a stand with some party and to take part in the preliminary campaign.

After the refreshments, the nominating committee reported their decision. The following vote resulted in the election of Jesse Jaffee as president of the club, Thomas Cusick as vice-president, and Peter Fish as secretary-treasurer. An executive committee consisting of Lucius Kel-lam, John Zietlow, Vernon Brown, and Robert Roach was appointed. Jaffee and Fish automatically became members of this committee, also, according to the provisions of the constitution.

Among the guests present was Mr. Buell of the History Department.

The following constitute the present membership of the club: Jesse Jaffee, Thomas Cusick, Peter Fish, Lucius Kellam, John Zietlow, Vernon Brown, Joseph Sarcia, Robert Roach, Henry Phippen, Wyatt Williams, Merle Lund, John Flynn, Robert Roney, Wilbur Lynch, Thomas Haggerty, William Angus, Philip Downes, Barclay Shaw, John S. McCook, Richard Pascall, John Bierkan, and Chester Yahn.

From all reports, Wesleyan boasts a rugged, hard-hitting aggregation, which will bear close watching. They have already proved their worth this year by trouncing all their opponents thus far, including the powerful Wilbraham Academy team, and they will undoubtedly prove to be a powerful obstacle in the path of Trinity, '38.
